CIVIL ACTION NO. 6:06-cv-00258)

JURY TRIAL DEMANDED)

z4's OPPOSITION TO DEFENDANTS' MOTION FOR STAY PENDING APPEAL

Defendants assert their motion to stay should be granted because z4 I will be reversed or at best partially affirmed.¹ (Defendants' Brief at 1, 2.) Implicitly, defendants assert that a stay postpones the inevitable because the jury and the Court got z4 I wrong. Defendants' self-proclamation of victory on appeal is not a basis to stay the present case.

In addition, Microsoft has asserted that it will have new versions of the adjudicated products on the market as early as October 2006 that do not infringe z4's patents.²

In light of this representation, z4 believes no stay is necessary during the short time before

² “The next generation releases of Microsoft Windows® and Microsoft Office® software — Windows Vista (2007) and Office 2007 (October 2006) — will have removed the allegedly infringing technology completely.” (Doc. No. 347, p. 1.)

Microsoft releases its new versions. As soon as the new versions are released, z4 can determine whether they continue to infringe the z4 patents.

Accordingly, z4 asks the Court to deny defendants' motion to stay this lawsuit.
